

2023 BHEF Scholarship Recipients

Cade Baker is a dynamic honor student, with a history of success both academically and in school activities. He has accumulated nearly two years of credit from Sheridan College, to be followed by a business/finance degree from the University of Wyoming, hoping to become an airline pilot and business owner.

Ashley Billings is described as an exemplary member of the senior class, in both academics and athletics. She has developed a passion for teaching and coaching, which is taking her to the University of Wyoming to study education and communications disorders, leading to a speech pathology career.

Wyatt Brown has excelled in academics as well as multiple sports in his years at Big Horn. He is actively engaged in community service and intends to be a positive influence in his community. He is headed to Montana State University to pursue a degree in business.

Cooper Garber is described as a unifying force at Big Horn High School, with the quiet confidence that leads him to succeed. He is off to the University of Sioux Falls to play football and to pursue a bachelor's degree in sports marketing, with a vision also to become a Navy pilot. Cooper was designated the Wright Family Scholar.

Dylan Greenough-Groom is described as one of the hardest working, most respectful students in the school, who exudes model behavior for others. He is entering Yakima Valley College in Washington, playing baseball and seeking a degree in business and construction management.

Peyton McLaughlin has an impressive work ethic and drive to succeed, making her a great role model for younger students. Before graduating high school, she has accumulated nearly two years of college credits, providing a good start to her study of pediatric occupational therapy at Dickinson State University.
